

AYR BEEKEEPERS OPEN HONEY COMPETITION

STAGING GUIDANCE

The following guidance is provided to help exhibitors who have entered the competition to stage their entries.

Staging should be carried out from 11am-2pm on Saturday 30th August 2025

Entries are entered anonymously and should have no names or other identifying marks on them (excluding class 10) except for the entry numbers provided by the show organisers.

Upon arrival at the show for staging you will be provided with an exhibitor's pack containing the following: -

- A list showing each class you have entered and the corresponding entry number
- A sheet of labels with multiple copies of each of your entry numbers.
- A copy of this guidance.

Exhibits should be displayed as described in the schedule, and entry numbers should be put on each of your entries: -

- For jars of honey entered in pairs, an entry number should be shown on both jars, stuck in the bottom third of the jar.
- For Beeswax items, entry number should be stuck to each candle, and the board your items are on.
- For displays on your own board both entry labels should be stuck in opposite corners of the board.
- For mead one label should be stuck to bottle along the bottom edge.
- Baking should be displayed on a plate/container and an entry number should be displayed on this.
- An entry sticker should be displayed in the bottom corner of each photograph.

The show benches and tables will be laid out prior to staging and you should place your exhibit on your corresponding entry number in the relevant class, on the bench/table if applicable, these should not be moved by anyone who is not a show steward.

Stewards of the show are the only other people allowed to touch or move exhibits which may be done if entries are staged in the wrong place or require to be moved class.
